

Spring is finally here and the Lost Garden is waking up from a long winter nap! The lot has (next to the Downtown Mobile Alliance) has been sold to the Peavy Foundation, but we have been given permission to continue the community garden for another year. We will be reinstalling the art panels in time for the May Art Walk.

The Mobile Arts Council is curating artists for the garden for each ArtWalk. If you are interested in painting a permanent art panel for the garden, or in being the featured ArtWalk artist in the upcoming months, email lgafford@mobilearts.org.

All the beds are now planted with tomatoes, beans, corn, squash, cucumbers and herbs. With the beautiful rain and sunshine, we are hoping the beds will fill out nicely with spring vegetables. We still have a lot of winter greens that we are leaving until after the fundraising event but then we will pick them and take to one of the food pantries. Some have already been picked by our friends at Mobile ARC that have helped us many times in the garden.

We will start back our monthly workdays on the 1st Saturday of each month from 10 AM – 12 PM beginning May 5th. Stop by and check out the garden, join us for a work day or join us for ArtWalk. Hope to see everyone soon
